AZMAK CEMETERY, SULVA
Turkey

The eight month campaign in Gallipoli was fought by Commonwealth and French forces in an attempt to force Turkey out of the war, to relieve the deadlock of the Western Front in France and Belgium, and to open a supply route to Russia through the Dardanelles and the Black Sea. The Allies landed on the peninsula on 25-26 April 1915. On 6 August, further troops were put ashore at Suvla, just north of Anzac, and the climax of the campaign came in early August when simultaneous assaults were launched on all three fronts. The aim of the Suvla force had been to quickly secure the sparsely held high ground surrounding the bay and salt lake, but confused landings and indecision caused fatal delays allowing the Turks to reinforce and only a few of the objectives were taken with difficulty. With Hill 10 Cemetery, Azmak recalls the northern part of the Suvla operations and the attempts to take and hold the Kiretch Tepi ridge and the high ground to the east. The cemetery was made after the Armistice when graves were brought in from isolated sites in the area. There are now 1,074 First World War servicemen buried or commemorated in this cemetery.

Tom Willis is buried in Plot II. Row G. Grave 19.

COLWALL FAMILY'S FINE RECORD SEVEN SONS IN THE ARMY

It is the proud boast of Mr and Mrs T Willis of Hill House, Colwall that they have sent seven sons to serve their country in the war. One has already laid down his life and another is a prisoner in Germany.

SERGEANT EDGAR ALEXANDER TOM WILLS

South Wales Borderers, sixth son joined the Army on the outbreak of war when in the employ of Mr F Ballard. He was eventually sent to the Dardanelles where he was killed on September 25th. He was 22 years of age and single. He is the first Colwall man to be killed in the land forces and a former pupil of Colwall Free Boys School.
